LANGUAGE IN EDUCATION: THEORY AND PRACTICE

ERIC (Educational Resources Information Center) is a nationwide network of information centers, each responsible for a given educational level or field of study. ERIC is supported by the National Institute of Education of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The basic objective of ERIC is to make current developments in educational research, instruction, and personnel preparation more readily accessible to educators and members of related professions.

ERIC/CLL. The ERIC Clearinghouse on Languages and Linguistics (ERIC/CLL), one of the specialized clearinghouses in the ERIC system, is operated by the Center for Applied Linguistics. ERIC/CLL is specifically responsible for the collection and dissemination of information in the general area of research and application in languages, linguistics, and language teaching and learning.

LANGUAGE IN EDUCATION: THEORY AND PRACTICE. In addition to processing information, ERIC/CLL is also involved in information synthesis and analysis. The Clearinghouse commissions recognized authorities in languages and linguistics to write analyses of the current issues in their areas of specialty. The resultant documents, intended for use by educators and researchers, are published under the title Language in Education: Theory and Practice.^{*} The series includes practical guides for classroom teachers, extensive state-of-the-art papers, and selected bibliographies.

The material in this publication was prepared pursuant to a contract with the National Institute of Education, U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Contractors undertaking such projects under Government sponsorship are encouraged to express freely their judgment in professional and technical matters. Prior to publication, the manuscript was submitted to the American Council on the Teaching of Foreign Languages for critical review and determination of professional competence. This publication has met such standards. Points of view or opinions, however, do not necessarily represent the official view or opinions of either ACTFL or NIE.

This publication may be purchased directly from the Center for Applied Linguistics. It also will be announced in the ERIC monthly abstract journal Resources in Education (RIE) and will be available from the ERIC Document Reproduction Service, Computer Microfilm International Corp., P.O. Box 190, Arlington, VA 22210. See RIE for ordering information and ED number.

For further information on the ERIC system, ERIC/CLL, and Center/Clearinghouse publications, write to ERIC Clearinghouse on Languages and Linguistics, Center for Applied Linguistics, 1611 N. Kent St., Arlington, VA 22209.

^{*}From 1974 through 1977, all Clearinghouse publications appeared as the CAL-ERIC/CLL Series on Languages and Linguistics. Although more papers are being added to the original series, the majority of the ERIC/CLL information analysis products will be included in the Language in Education series.

FOREWORD

The ERIC Clearinghouse on Languages and Linguistics receives thousands of requests annually for information from language teachers and students in the United States and abroad. Frequently, these requests call for products or services that are provided by organizations other than our clearinghouse or the Center for Applied Linguistics. We thus find ourselves referring a number of these requests to other organizations.

This directory is an outgrowth of our experience as a referral service. Over the past several months, Sophia Behrens, with the assistance of Christine Meloni, has undertaken the arduous task of obtaining essential information about foreign language service organizations, organizing it, verifying it, and finally putting it into the format which follows, in order to make it available to a larger number of potential users. We hope that this directory will help American foreign language teachers and students to identify more easily those service organizations that will be able to provide them with assistance.

Peter A. Eddy, Director
ERIC Clearinghouse on Languages and Linguistics

INTRODUCTION

Purpose

This directory is intended to provide foreign language educators with a convenient reference guide containing information on the availability of resources and services that can help them enrich classroom instruction. It is meant to be useful as well to all persons who are concerned with the study or advancement of foreign languages and cultures.

Background

The Center for Applied Linguistics sent questionnaires seeking the information included in this directory to a list of more than 130 organizations related in some way to foreign languages and to 120 publishers of foreign language materials. A deadline was given, and after this deadline had passed, a reminder was sent out. Those organizations that did not respond to the second appeal were contacted by telephone, and a final reminder was sent to those that still failed to respond.

There will undoubtedly be omissions in this first attempt to develop a directory of this kind. The editor takes full responsibility for the omission of any organizations or publishers that should have been included and welcomes suggestions for additions to the lists in the event that the directory is reissued.

The major purpose of this directory is to provide information for teachers and students of foreign languages. Two major sources of information and services relating to the teaching of English as a second language, however, have been included--Teachers of English to Speakers of Other Languages (TESOL) and the British Council English Teaching Information Centre. These organizations should be contacted for additional sources.

Organization

The directory is divided into three sections: Foreign Language Service Organizations, a Language Index, and Publishers and Distributors of Foreign Language Materials. Organization information includes executive officer; date founded; source of funding; number of members (if membership organization); qualifications, benefits and costs of membership; number and composition of staff; purpose; subject area; grade level; services, including resource centers and libraries; geographic area served; publications; and current projects. Organizations offering services related to specific languages may be located in the index under the language itself or under such broader terms as "Foreign languages, general," "Uncommonly taught languages," "Eastern European languages," etc.

How to Use the Directory

This directory may help the reader in several ways. For example, a teacher of Italian may want information on Italian culture. The index should be consulted under "Italian" for organizations focusing specifically on this language. Or a school may want to develop a new Spanish curriculum and would like to provide inservice training for teachers after the curriculum is adopted. The list of publishers indicates those that offer inservice training. Individual organizations may also be checked under "services" to identify those that provide consultant services.

Additional Sources Available

Three important publications that also may be useful to foreign language educators should be mentioned: (1) Feature Films in Second Language Instruction, by Hart Wegner (part of the CAL-ERIC/CLL Series on Languages and Linguistics), which discusses the use of films in the teaching of foreign languages and provides an extensive bibliography and list of film distributors (ERIC Clearinghouse on Languages and Linguistics, $2.50); (2) Information Sources in Linguistics: A Bibliographical Handbook, compiled by Frank Rice and Allene Guss (Center for Applied Linguistics, $2.50); and (3) CSP Directory of Suppliers of Educational Foreign Language Materials (Cruzada Spanish Publications, $5.00).
